

ABOUT

KATRINA LEONARD

Katrina Leonard is a native of Folsom, La., born to Beulah Cyprian of Mandeville, La., and Reginald Cotton of Augusta, Ga. She was reared by her maternal grandparents, the late Bishop Edward Cyprian and Prophetess Louise Cyprian of Folsom, La. They planted seeds and laid a godly foundation that shaped and developed her life. She is married to Pastor Lashaun Leonard and the mother of two sons, Kobe Cotton, and Tyshaun Leonard. She has two grandchildren, Memphis Cotton, and Demi Silvan. She is the first-born of her siblings. She was taught to strive for excellence. Her grandfather often said, "Do your best. If you're going to be a street sweeper, be the best street sweeper you can be. If you're going to be a ditch digger, be the best ditch digger you can be whatever you do in life, do your best." After graduating from Covington High School in 1996, she attended Southeastern Louisiana University and attained a Bachelor's degree in 2001. After facing many obstacles which shaped her divine purpose and with the guidance of her Pastor, she accepted her calling in 2014. She preached her first message and was licensed as an Evangelist on December 28, 2014. Inspired by her husband, she attended Luther Rice College and Seminary in Lithonia, Ga., receiving a Master of Arts in Ministry in May 2018.

Evangelist Katrina Leonard founded Sisters in the Spirit women's group on Facebook, praying and providing Live devotionals and Inspiration during the week. Two other women assisted her, desiring to see people's lives transformed and FREE from sin. She is employed at Regina Coeli Child Development Center, teaching young children for over 16 years. She is currently employed as a Mentor Teacher for RCCDC.

She enjoys reading the Word of God, listening to music, photography, and spending quality time with her family in her spare time. Her favorite scripture is, "But by the grace of God I am what I am, and His grace towards me was not in vain, ..." (1 Corinthians 15:10 NKJV).
